

Angry Thurmond Continuing Civil Rights Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thurmond (D-SC) apparently got his second wind and definitely developed an edgy temper today as he continued his one-man filibuster against the civil rights bill.

He chatted up 15 hours at 11:54 a. m.

Indicating he was not about to quit, Thurmond promised he would "discuss at some length" the expectations he said South Carolina voters get under state laws. He proceeded to do just that.

The flashes of temper appeared as other senators conferred, in whispers, on the floor.

At one point Thurmond called for order in the chamber when a clerk whispered something to Sen. Yarborough (Tex.), who was presiding at the time.

Thurmond stopped and glared pointedly another time at Democratic Leader Johnson of Texas and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (Maine) as they held a whispered consultation with a committee clerk.

There were glares from time to time for other whisperers.

Thurmond kept his talk going in the face of word from Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, that it was all futile.

Knowland, looking fresh in contrast to the obvious wear on Thurmond, appeared in the chamber at 8:30 a. m. to tell the South Carolinian he couldn't win, that there will be no adjournment of Congress until there is civil rights action, and that Thurmond was inviting rules changes making it easier to break up long talk.

Then, after the brief interruption, Knowland went to the White House, for breakfast with President Eisenhower while Thurmond kept going.

After the White House session, Knowland said, he had told Eisenhower Congress still might be able to adjourn tonight despite Thurmond.

Actress Would be Held If Returned

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The district attorney's office served notice today that the state would greet Confidential magazine's alleged top tattle, actress Francesca de Scaffa, with a warrant for her arrest if Mexico forces her to return to California.

Dispatches from Mexico City report that the actress obtained a 24-hour delay of an order to deport her from Mexico. The former wife of actor Bruce Cabot was to present arguments against the deportation order this morning before Jose Santam, head of the Mexican immigration office.

By turning herself in, Miss De Scaffa could evade return to California, original point of entry. If she is arrested and deported involuntarily, she must return to California.

Dep. Dist. Atty. William Ritz said a standing warrant was out for the arrest of the actress. He said she would be returned here to stand trial with Confidential magazine on criminal libel charges.

"The state will grab her the minute she steps into the United States," Ritz said.

His statement came in the sensational Confidential trial was in recess. The trial resumes tomorrow and then will be adjourned until next Tuesday because of the Labor Day weekend.

Beck Charged in Second Indictment

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A second multiple indictment charging evasion of income taxes—this time totaling $184,000—faced Dave Beck today. His son and four others are accused of aiding him conceal his earnings.

The seven count charge covering the years 1951-53 was returned here yesterday by a federal grand jury and quickly denied in Los Angeles by the portly head of the Teamsters Union. It culminated a four and a half week investigation by the jurors who indicted Beck May 2 on charges of evading $56,000 in taxes in 1950.

Named in the indictment were his son, Fred Verschueren Sr., an auditor for the Teamsters Union; Nathan Shefferman, a Chicago labor relations consultant; Shefferman's son, Shelton; and Norman Cessert, a Teamsters Union organizer who is a cousin of Mrs. Beck Sr.

Judge Calls Temporary Halt to Enrolling Negro Students; Kasper Irks Segregationists

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pulaski Chancellor Murray O. Reed today temporarily enjoined Little Rock school authorities from enrolling Negro students in previously all-white Central High School here next Tuesday.

Reed took note of the U. S. Supreme Court opinion against forced desegregation in public schools but said that in view of testimony that there was a possibility of violence he felt he would grant the order.

The ruling was handed down verbally after a 2-hour hearing on a petition of Mrs. Clyde Thomson, secretary of the recently organized League of Central High Mothers, asking that the Little Rock School Board and Supt. Virgil Blossom be prohibited from enrolling Negro students.

Witnesses included Gov. Orval Faubus. In delivering his opinion Reed referred to testimony of the governor that he feared integration in the high school at this time might lead to violence.

Mrs. Thomson's petition was twofold.

"Gov. Griffin said Georgia has no integration, and people began to wonder if Georgia can get by without it, why can't Arkansas," he said.

Previously Blossom, who had been called as a witness by attorneys for Mrs. Thomson, testified that he believed most Little Rock citizens do not favor integration but that he believed also that they accepted the school board's plan as the "best solution to a difficult problem."

Blossom said he had been assured by Little Rock Police Chief Marvin H. Potts that there would be no violence but he added under questioning that Potts had not told him what the specific plans were to prevent such a possibility.

Attorneys representing the school board did not put on any testimony of their own. They also had planned to have Blossom testify but he was called first as a plaintiff's witness.

Two other suits involving integration are pending in chancery court and still another has been filed in federal district court where a group of Negro ministers are seeking to have declared unconstitutional the Arkansas segregation laws including that one which Reed held valid.

In earlier testimony Mrs. Thomson said she had received an anonymous telephone call today telling her "You'd better not be in court."

Faubus said afterwards he was "gratified" by the temporary injunction because "it will give us time to litigate some questions which should be litigated."

Mrs. L. C. Bates, head of the Arkansas Branch of the NAACP, could not be reached immediately for comment.

The child was born about a month and a half premature, officials at University of Arkansas Medical Center said Wednesday.

Dr. Eva Dodge, who delivered the baby, said the child's Negro mother was verified through a birth certificate to have been born in another state in March, 1948.

Dr. Willis E. Brown, head of the center's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, said the mother is the youngest on his department's records, nursing out by two years an 11-year-old girl who gave birth to a baby in the hospital about three weeks ago.

Hospital officials refused to reveal further details. They would not give the girl's name, home town or whether she was married. William W. Hughes, news director for the center, said, "Doctors have decided to protect such cases as this as far as publicity is concerned."

The baby was placed in an incubator and doctors said he had a good chance to live.

The 9-year-old mother was reported in good condition today. Hospital officials said to their knowledge no name has been given the tiny baby.

Syria Denies Influence of Russia

By MURRAY BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Reports from Damascus indicated today Syrian officials are trying to minimize the extent of Communist influence on their country in an attempt to allay fears among its Middle East neighbors.

Foreign Minister Salah EL Eitar himself issued a denial of a report that Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and other member of the Kremlin "road show," Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, would visit Syria before the end of the year.

Eitar labeled the report distributed by a Western news agency from its Damascus office as "resumption of the propaganda campaign against Syria."

A Cairo newspaper report that Syrian President Shukri El Kawlawi had asked the cabinet for a three-month leave to undergo an operation in Switzerland also brought a speedy official denial.

Syrian Information Minister Salah Akel said the report published by the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram was "totally contradictory to the facts."

Mystery Writer Craig Rice Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mystery writer Craig Rice, 49, whose tough, hard-boiled characters fought and shot their way through 25 books, was found dead in her apartment last night.

Miss Rice's body was discovered by another mystery writer, R. D. Witt Miller, owner of the apartment building.

A statement issued here covering presentation of the 11-point plan at the London disarmament talks called it a "practical, workable plan for a start on world disarmament."

The United States originated the proposals but they were worked out jointly with Britain, France and Canada and cleared with the rest of the NATO allies.

With one or two exceptions, the proposals had already been outlined early in the disarmament talks so that the 3,000-word document contained little new information. There was nothing of a surprise nature.

One of the new provisions, designed to meet Russia's insistence on a ban on the use of nuclear weapons, specifies that each country participating in disarmament would use nuclear weapons only in self-defense.

The wording is stated in negative terms this way:

"Each party assumes an obligation not to use nuclear weapons if an armed attack has not placed the party in a situation of individual or collective self-defense."

This construction was officially explained as being necessary to allow for the use of nuclear weapons in case the United States, for example, became involved in a "situation of defense" because of an attack on an Allied country.

Related to this section was another more or less new proposal—there had been some talk about it at London—which is designed to keep the door open for nuclear arming, notably of Britain, and France, should Russia accept the plan and its terms actually be converted into treaty form.

This section which would also let Russia supply atomic weapons to its satellites, states:

"Each party undertake not to transfer out of its control any nuclear weapons, or to accept transfer to it of such weapons, except where, under arrangements between transferor and transferee, Continued on Page Two

To film fans too old for Jacks and too young for Clark Gable, this is the greatest romance of the 20th century. At least for the moment.

Wagner, who isn't in the film, haunts the set all day and is definitely in the picture as soon as the cameras cease grinding. After work he and Natalie, who is chaperoned by her mother and young sister, Lana, are as close as two holes in a Swiss cheese.

As they sipped a beer together the other evening, watching a fading sun turn the mountains into pink-tinted purple pyramids, Natalie talked of her future.

"I want two children, a boy and a girl," she said, "but as to exactly when I'll marry," she hesitated, and glanced self-consciously over at Wagner, who said nothing.

There is so much yet I want to do in this business. There is no end to how far you can go if you handle yourself properly. I think eventually I'd like to go into the production end.

"That's the only way an actor can make any real money," agreed Bob, patting her as she wore a flower.

"But right now I have everything I want," continued Natalie. "I'm happy. Bob has a boat, and we spend every spare moment we can on it. That's the life. If I could retire right now, I'd like to live on a boat."

"I hate big boring parties with people talking about nothing," she said. "I am realizing more and more how rare privacy is. It's harder and harder for R. J.—as she calls Bob—and me to be alone."

"And I know the problem will be worse."

Before her 20th birthday Natalie has learned the price of prominence.

his passport to Chinese authorities.

Reuters said he was awakened at 1 a. m. yesterday by Communist officials and told that unless he changes his position he will have to leave China.

Tucker has taken the stand that he will not use his passport in connection with the prohibitions stamped in the document. Five others besides Tucker declined to give up their passports when they arrived in Peking but later turned them over for examination.

Tucker's stand brought criticisms from some of his companions. They said that although he may not actually have shown his passport to the Chinese, he has in fact used it because the Chinese would not have let him enter China without a passport.

Dan O'Connell of Chicago said it was "regrettable that Shelby's leaving implies that—and possibly other Americans here—have used our passports in possible violation of restrictions while he has not."

Tucker contended he had not used his passport at any stage. He said he had been told in Moscow that he would not have to use it for the Peking trip.

Before the Americans left Moscow for Peking, the U. S. State Department warned that in making the trip they would be violating the restriction plainly stamped in their passports.

Judge Calls

after reports had been published here that he intended to come to Little Rock. Kasper denied plans for such a visit.

But the reports that he might come here touched off denunciations of the Washington, D. C., segregationist who recently was convicted for causing violence in last year's integration of high school classes at Clinton, Tenn.

Sharply worded criticisms of Kasper came from segregation leaders at Little Rock.

Gov. Orval Faubus reacted to the reports that Kasper might visit Arkansas by saying such a trip would "definitely be detrimental."

"A man is guaranteed freedom of travel and freedom of speech under laws of the state and the nation," Faubus said, but he added, "I'm certainly not going to send him an invitation."

After reports that Kasper might come to Little Rock had been circulated last night, a Nashville Tennessee newspaper asked him if he had made any plans for such a visit.

Kasper looked surprised at the query and replied: "No."

A moment later he added "No comment."

Kasper made a segregation speech at Nashville last night and later, friends said he had gone to North Carolina for a speaking tour.

The Rev. Fred Stroud said at Nashville that he "understood" Kasper planned to drive to North Carolina late last night. Stroud said Kasper was due back in Nashville Saturday.

This is what some segregationist leaders and public officials of Arkansas had to say about reports that Kasper might come to the state.

their use will be in conformity with paragraph 3."

The section referred to was that providing for use of weapons only in self-defense.

The 11 points of the Western plan, which is officially designated as a "working paper—proposals for partial measures of disarmament," cover not only specific arms reduction and control measures but also the creation of inspection and control machinery under an "international control organization."

One section provides that any nation can renounce its commitments under the proposed treaty by simply giving written notice in the event that some other nation is guilty of an "important violation."

Another section provides that any nation can renounce its commitments under the proposed treaty by simply giving written notice in the event that some other nation is guilty of an "important violation."

Another section says that the proposals constitute a single package and that "its provisions are inseparable."

The major provisions which now represent agreed positions of the Western powers are these:

1. A year after the disarmament treaty became effective Russia and the United States would cut their forces to 2,500,000 men each and France and Britain to 750,000 men each.

LONDON (AP)—The United States moved swiftly today to counter new Soviet moves by laying before Russia—and the world—a complete plan for a first stage arms reduction and control agreement.

The plan—vital parts of which Russia has already denounced—calls for ending the atomic arms race, banning nuclear tests for two years, limiting missiles development to peaceful purposes, and cutting back conventional military forces.

U. S. negotiator Harold E. Stassen was under the instruction from Washington to present the package proposition to Soviet representative Valerian Zorin at London today.

Angry Thurmond

mond Knowland said his report was the first word Eisenhower had received that the Senate had been going all night.

The Republican leader said there were indications Thurmond's operation was "a purely isolated and solo filibuster."

It was the first time the Senate had stayed in round-the-clock session since 1953. The day's regular sitting started at 10 a. m. so that a 24-hour run was guaranteed when Thurmond went past that time and into his 14th hour.

The last all-night sitting in 1953 featured a 22-hour and 20-minute speech by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) against the tidelands bill. Morse set an unofficial Senate record for marathon talk.

Frequently Thurmond's voice was low he could not be heard in the press and public galleries.

However, about 9:30 a. m. his voice gained strength as he began re-reading a statement he made to the Senate Tuesday night in a vain effort to have the bill sent to the Judiciary Committee after it had been passed by the House.

Thurmond was helped by two aides who sat near him during the night and handed him papers to read. They were Alex McCullough his administrative assistant, and Harry S. Dent, a legislative assistant.

Knowland first told the South Carolina senator he will not be able to block Senate action by long talk. Knowland said there will be no resolution for final adjournment of this session of Congress "until we have completed work on the pending legislation—which is the civil rights bill."

Then the Republican leader asked Thurmond if he was trying to emphasize "the need for a change in January of Rule 22."

Rule 22 is the one that makes it difficult to shut off debate in the Senate. It requires the votes of 64 senators—two-thirds of the full membership—to apply a limit to debate.

Up to this session, Southerners have taken advantage of that rule, by either actual or threatened filibusters to block civil rights legislation. Other senators have conducted filibusters under it against other legislation.

Thurmond made no specific reply to Knowland's question. Thurmond did say his speech was designed to "call to the attention of the Senate and the people of this nation that this is a dangerous bill."

When Knowland arrived for his brief interruption there were only three persons in the galleries and three members on the floor—Sens. Clark (D-Pa.), presiding, and Mansfield (D-Mont) and ville Saturday.

Hruska (R-Meb).

An aide of Thurmond said he wouldn't use the word filibuster to describe the senator's marathon speech. "The senator says he has some execution to do."

Thurmond spoke to an almost deserted chamber as the night wore on. When he rose to speak at 9 p. m., there were some 15 senators on hand. After midnight, this number had dropped to three or so. The galleries emptied.

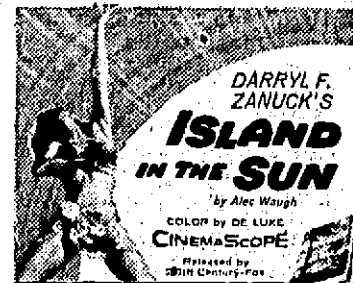

Several other Southern senators had spoken during the long session that began at 10 a. m. yesterday. Virtually to a man, they voiced their unyielding opposition to the civil rights bill which passed the House in compromise form.

All conceded they lacked the numerical strength to talk the legislation to death.

Before Thurmond's unexpected speech began, a number of Dixie senators had made plans to place their views on the record at a session expected to start today at 10 a. m.

Miss Shiver Complimented With Party In Springer Home
Miss Marilyn Shiver, popular bride-elect, was honored with an informal party of Wednesday, August 28, 1957, by Mrs. L. D. Springer, Mrs. H. O. Kyler, Jr., and Mrs. Harry O. Kyler in the home of the latter.

Mrs. F. C. Crow invited the guests into the home, which was lovely with arrangements of summer flowers. Each one was asked to write a favorite recipe for the prospective bride. Miss Mary Anita Laster presided over the table at which this was done.

The dining table, overlaid with a pink cloth, held a miniature bridal party with a background of pink and white zinnias. Iced drinks and dainty refreshments were served from it to the guests.

The honored guest, who was prettily attired in a tulle-trimmed frock of pink cotton and white lace, received a gift of linen from the hostesses.

DOROTHY DIX

Watch P's and Q's. Office Needs More Than Shorthand

Dear Dorothy Dix: My boss and I are very congenial. We're both married and there is absolutely nothing out of the way in our relationship, but we do "work on" a friendly basis. The only fault he has as a boss is in moodiness. On two occasions I've discussed my old boss who has been having an extra-marital affair for some years, but my present employer shut up like a clam. Why does it have this effect on him?

Dear Gemmy: Your boss has learned discretion; you haven't. It's about time you learned.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Every year we have a family reunion attended by about 60 people. They come from many different towns, and some of them don't arrive until one o'clock. I think we should wait to serve until everyone arrives, but one of my cousins begins serving her children at 11 o'clock. I think everyone should wait to eat until the food has been blessed and we can sit down together.

Dear Hattie: In theory you may be right; practically you're wrong. Children who have themselves done a bit of traveling are hungry and restless. If they're not taken care of, they can spoil the day for everyone. A separate table, set for them, might ease the situation.

Dear Dorothy Dix: When a boy invites a girl on a date, is it up to her to decide where they will go, or does he do the planning?

BESS

Dear Bess: Ideally, they have agreed on a place before the actual date. The boy asks the girl what she'd like to do, offering a suggestion or two in case the young lady is timid. The final decision is up to her.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What is your opinion of an 18-year-old girl going out with a 15-year-old boy. My mother doesn't mind because she likes the boy.

A. G.

Dear A. G.: Unless you are awfully immature, a lad of 15 is too young for you. Drop him back in the pond for a young teen-ager to catch.

Coe Undecided on Players He Will Use

MINNAPOLIS (AP) — U. S. Walker Cup Captain Charlie Coe delayed a decision on his opening day lineup for a final appraisal today of Uncle Sam's calmly confident forces.

"I still haven't made up my mind what combinations to use in Friday's two-ball foursomes," Coe said after yesterday's practice round. "I want to take another look to see how we do today."

Announcement of the pairings for the four Scotch foursome matches will be made this afternoon.

The U. S. practice alignment, however, may have given some insight on how Coe plans to deploy in quest of a 15th American victory in this 16th collision of the best amateur golfers of America and Great Britain.

Billy Joe Patton was paired with Rex Bastier, Arnold Blum with veteran Charles J. Koels, Bill Campbell with Dr. Bud Taylor, and Hillman Robbins with Taylor and Rudolph and Joe Campbell with Bill Hyndman. Koels and Blum were low with a 72, one over Mini-Kahn's par.

In the Scotch foursome players take alternate strokes.

The teams play eight singles matches on Saturday after the opening foursomes. Nothing that happened in nearly a week of sharpening up here has shaken America's favorite role.

Congress Has Been Generous With Arkansas

By GORDON BROWN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been fairly generous with the purse strings as far as Arkansas is concerned.

As a result of appropriations and authorizations at least 80 million dollars will be available for projects in Arkansas in the next 11 or 12 months.

The present Congress, now about to wind up for the year, has voted some 27½ million dollars for water projects in the state or on its fringes and more than 12 million dollars for military works.

In addition, under Congressional authorization more than 37 million dollars will be available to the state for a highway construction program. The bulk of this money — nearly 25 million dollars — is for the interstate highway system and is to be matched by the state on a one to 10 basis.

The remaining 12½ million dollars is for the primary, secondary and urban systems and is matched by the state on a 50-50 basis.

The biggest single appropriation for the water project, $17,000,000 is for the Table Rock reservoir, just across the line in Missouri. Of considerable importance, however, is the fact that $1,400,000 was voted to get under way the big Dardanelle dam, which eventually will cost some 95 million dollars. The $2 million dollar Greers Ferry dam also is just getting under way.

Congress also stood back of the Arkansas Congressional delegation and directed the Army to continue in operation for another year the Army-Navy hospital at hot Springs.

Uncertain at this writing was the date of a bill by Sen. Fulbright, D-Ark., to set up a research project to determine the best methods of producing fish commercially in rice ponds.

Put over until next year was a final Congressional decision on a bill to authorize nearly 148 million dollars worth of new water projects in the state.

Included are these projects: Millwood reservoir and seven up-stream reservoirs, $50,235,000; Lone Rock and Gilbert reservoirs, $37,000,000; White River backwater area, $2,880,000; St. Francis basin, $35,074,000 and Barlett-Texas, $1,212,000.

Unfortunately, the Budget Bureau and hence the Republicans oppose it of the Arkansas projects except the St. Francis basin fired on next year when the bill does come up.

The Army has been studying the matter and is too come up with a decision shortly, according to word reaching Trimble.

Rep. Brooks Hays D-Ark. plans to visit Canada this month as part of a study of Canadian-American relations he is making with Rep. Coffin H. Malone.

The two members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, will issue a joint report.

Hays said he is of the opinion that this country's relations with its neighbor to the north haven't received sufficient attention by Congress.

Sen. Fulbright D-Ark. showed good thing recently when he introduced a resolution calling on the State Department to encourage bona fide news men to go into all countries to gather news.

It was aimed specifically at Secretary Dulles' ban on letting reporters go to Red China.

Two days later Dulles relaxed the ban and agreed to let 24 reporters go to that country.

In a talk, Fulbright said the Department had adopted a head-in-the-sand attitude, an attitude he would like to disassociate itself from.

Krushchev Denounces Malenkov

MOSCOW (AP) — In the strongest indictment of Georgi Malenkov to date, Nikita Khrushchev has denounced the former Soviet Premier as a shadow and tool of exiled secret police chief Lavrenty Beria.

The Communist party boss, in an article published yesterday in the Pravda, charged Malenkov and Beria with acts which now warrant denunciation.

Khrushchev declared Malenkov was completely under Beria's influence, that he was the former police chief's "shadow and tool in his hands."

Stalin made "gross and grave mistakes," he said, but he did much good for Russia and the Communist movement.

"Though Malenkov occupied a high position in the party and government," Khrushchev continued, "he did not restrain Stalin, but very skillfully took advantage of Stalin's weaknesses and habits in the last years of his life. In many cases he incited him to action which was deserving of stern condemnation."

Malenkov was purged from the "from this foolishness."

"This body," he said, "ought to make clear that the Department of State, instead of itself restricting the movement of legitimate newsmen, should make every effort to open areas which are closed to them by the policies of other governments."

Whether his resolution and talk had anything to do with Dulles' decision is something he probably would like to know.

SOME PUNISHMENT

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Mrs. Martha Moyo of Meadowlands, Johannesburg, recently exhibited her seventh act of twine today and said: "It must be sort of punishment from God."

top Kremlin command in late June for allegedly conspiring with V. M. Molotov and Leonid Kaganovich in a revolt against Khrushchev's policies. The Soviet government says the nifty ex-premier now is director of a power station in Central Asia.

Beria was purged in June 1959 while Malenkov was premier. He died before a firing squad the following December.

THE CANVAS DAGGER

by HELEN REILLY

THE STORY: Sarah Casement believes someone was in the studio of Grant Melville just before the artist fell four floors to his death. No one will believe Sarah and in order to prove to herself that she saw someone through the window, she volunteers to help the widow do Melville's biography. There are several applicants for the job.

CHAPTER IV

Sarah went through the indicated door and closed it behind her. The room was a formal living room. The portrait of Melville hung over the mantel.

It was a self-portrait. The dead painter gazed out, palette in one hand, knife in the other. He was smiling a little. His lips, red lips, were slightly parted. It wasn't the man she had seen at the studio window, the man who had plunged to a terrible death. It was the beard that made the difference, a black beard trimmed to a point.

Three strikes and out — Miss Dolwin, Mr. Dennert, the man with the third hat, and now Grant Melville himself — she had seen them all before, and not all together or in the same place. The reason she hadn't recognized Melville when she looked across at him from Zita's apartment that day was the beard, of course. It changed him completely.

The room was L-shaped. It went around a corner at the front. Beyond a wide, curtained arch was a library. The walls were lined with books. There was a large, handsome desk in the middle of the floor. A man sat at the desk, working with a sheaf of papers. His back was toward her, a recognizable back with narrow, sloping shoulders.

It was Mr. Dennert, the man with the unhappy hat, the man who had been dismissed with finality at least 20 minutes earlier. Dennert finished with his task, which appeared to be the searching of the desk. He put the papers back in an open drawer, closed the drawer, pushed back the chair, got up — and saw Sarah.

"Oh... ah... Good morning." There was a door that led directly into the hall. Mr. Dennert started for it. Watching him move, Sarah remembered where she had seen him before.

"Wait," she said crisply. "You were outside this house on the day Mr. Melville was killed." Dennert halted. He looked at her kindly. "My dear young lady, I don't know what you mean. Outside this house?"

"You were outside this house," Sarah repeated, "shortly before Grant Melville died. You were down there near the corner waiting for someone or something. You kept talking to and fro, and looking at your watch."

Dennert smiled sadly. "You may be right. I don't know. I don't know when Mr. Melville died. You see, I live a short distance from here, on the wrong side of the tracks, the other side of Third, and I often walk about in this neighborhood."

It let the air out of Sarah. She felt foolish. She said, "I'm sorry," and smiled.

The smile appeared to dazzle Dennert. He started to say something, and stopped. His glance shifted. He looked past her. Sarah glanced over her shoulder. The man named Gillespie was just inside the door of the long room. When she turned back to speak to

Polio Cases in State Decrease

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Polio cases in Arkansas have decreased so steadily they now are nearly half the figure of the corresponding period last year, a state Board of Health report showed today.

Cases total 52 compared to 95 in 1956.

Paralytic cases are less than one-third of last year — 19 compared to 65.

There has been only one death from polio this year compared to eight in 1956.

Two cases of polio were reported last week, a paralytic case in Mississippi County and a non-paralytic one in Ouachita County.

Ten cases were listed in the corresponding week last year.

Malay, spoken by 70 million people, in a foreign language subject in only five universities in the United States.

Mr. Dennert, Mr. Dennert was gone.

Two things struck Sarah, with force. One was that Gillespie might have heard her make what amounted to an accusation against Dennert — and the other was that Dennert himself, plausible as he had been, had made no explanation whatever of what he was doing at Melville's desk.

Gillespie came strolling toward her. His dancing eyes were bright and intent. It was an aloof face, she thought, sophisticated and strong and intelligent, but aloof.

"Cigarette?" he offered a pack to her. She shook her head. He lit one leisurely and said through smoke, "It seems as though you and I are the pick of the field. Miss Dolwin's getting her dismissal now. How did you come to see that fellow Dennert outside this house on the day Melville died?"

So he had heard. His glance was penetrating. A thread of fear stirred in Sarah.

"I had been visiting a friend who lives near here and was waiting for a cab. I had to wait a long time."

"On the corner of University and Tenth?"

"That's right."

"You evidently don't know the neighborhood very well. You should have gone over to Fifth. It's just a block and there are always plenty of cabs there. Were you down there in the street when Melville fell?"

Sarah reflected that Mr. Gillespie wanted to know rather a lot, and wasn't timid about asking, but under no circumstances could you call him a timid man. "I saw the crowd, and heard what had happened," she put a question of her own, pleasantly. "Were you down there in the street that day? Did you see the accident?"

"Yes, I was down in the street." Gillespie might have been the man in the studio. He looked as though he could kill, ruthlessly, if the motive was strong enough.

"You live around here, Mr. Gillespie?"

Gillespie nodded absently. "I live at the Parliament."

The Parliament was a well-known and expensive hotel on lower Fifth Avenue. "You live at the Parliament and you answered Mrs. Melville's ad?" Her brows rose.

Blast Soviet Stand on Arms Reduction

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that persistent Soviet scorn for Western arm reduction proposals might condemn humanity to "an indefinite future of immeasurable danger."

Eisenhower pledged this country continued efforts to find a true road to peace despite Russia's bitter attack in London Tuesday on Western proposals for aerial inspection of the United States, Russia and Canada.

The chief executive set forth his views in a special statement issued after a one-hour White House meeting with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Eisenhower said the "scornful words" used Tuesday by Valerian Zorin, the Soviet disarmament delegate, were "deeply disappointing to all true lovers of peace."

Referring to Russia's announcement this week that it had successfully tested an intercontinental ballistic missile, the President said:

"It is noteworthy that this (Zorin) attack coincides with the boastful statement by the Soviet Union that they have made advances in the development of means for bringing mass destruction to any part of the world."

Then, pointing out that the Western powers are in the process of completing their presentation of a "first-stage" arms reduction plan in London, the President added:

"It would be tragic if these important first-stage proposals, fought with such significance for the peace of the world, were rejected by the Soviet Union even before they could have been seriously studied and before the Western presentation is complete."

"Such a Soviet attitude would condemn humanity to an indefinite future of immeasurable danger." As far as this country is concerned, the President said, "we shall never renounce our efforts to find ways and means to save mankind from that danger and to establish a just and lasting peace."

Finds Students Don't Cherish Freedoms

WASHINGTON (UP)—The freedoms guaranteed to Americans by the Bill of Rights apparently are no longer cherished by college students, a team of sociologists reported today.

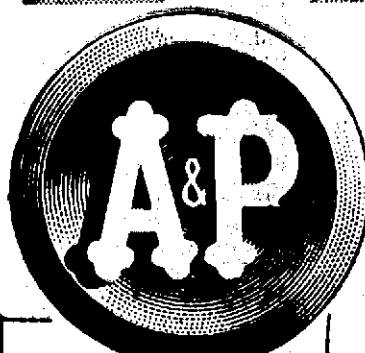

Dr. Robert McGinis of the University of Wisconsin and Raymond W. Mack of Northwestern University presented to the 32nd annual meeting of the American Sociological Society the results of a survey they conducted among University of Wisconsin undergraduates.

In the survey, the first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution — familiarly called the Bill of Rights — were transformed into a 14-item questionnaire.

A "random sample" of students was asked to answer the questionnaire, which brought out their attitudes toward various Bill of Rights principles such as freedom of press and religion, protection against double jeopardy, the right to avoid self-incriminating testimony.

The students "overwhelmingly rejected the principles of the Bill of Rights," McGinis and Mack said.

out within three to four hours while fire fighters from Cabot and Beebe soaked other structures close by to keep the flames from spreading further.

Fire Chief George Todd of Cabot said the "only thing that kept that fire from wiping out the whole town was the fact there was no breeze. The flames went straight up."

Ward has no fire fighting equipment.

Todd said the fire first started in an old building, then jumped to a two-story lodge hall across the street and ignited an adjacent empty dwelling. Finally, the blaze jumped across the street and destroyed a building used for processing strawberries.

The strawberry processing shed were owned by W. L. Walker. No damage estimate has been made.

Todd said the section that burned had been nearly abandoned when the town move recently about a block to relocate along

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees, striving to strengthen their injury-riddled pitching staff for the stretch drive, may be balked a second time in an effort to obtain Brooklyn's Sal (The Barber) Maglie, one time scourge of the National League.

In 1955 the Cleveland Indians refused to pass on the 40-year-old righthander when he was placed on the waiver list by the New York Giants after pacing the National League club to the 1951 and '54 championships.

This time it is the Chicago White Sox, who trail the Yankees by 2 1/2 games after losing last night 5-4, standing in the road of the American League champions.

Chuck Comiskey, vice president of the White Sox, said they claimed Maglie the first time he was placed on the waiver list but that the Dodgers withdrew him.

"This time, we let him go through and will bargain for him," Comiskey said. The Yankees also waived on the Barber the second time around, thus setting up a battle of dollars.

Under the waiver clause, all clubs in the National League first must waive on Maglie, who is said to be receiving $30,000 for pitching this year. Then all American League clubs starting the last place Senators, also must waive. A club is permitted to withdraw a player's name only once.

"We have made a substantial offer for Maglie and also Virgil Trucks of Kansas City," said Comiskey. Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees said he had no knowledge of the efforts to obtain Maglie. There was no comment from other club officials.

Turley Comes Through, Yanks Lead 5 1/2 Games

By ED WILKS
Bullet Bob Turley, once a strong but wild strikeout artist who fired away and hoped for the best, finally has become a pitcher. A poised and powerful ace who has slayed the door of the Chicago White Sox in their bid to overhail New York's Yankees.

The big righthander has proved himself virtually over night in his sixth major league season just when the Yankees needed him most.

He has won nine of 11 and has become the major league leader with a 2.41 earned run average.

It was Turley who fanned Minnie Minoso with the bases loaded in the eighth for a 12-6 triumph in Tuesday's opener. Last night, with the tying run on third and the winning run on second, Turley sent a caller third strike past Sammy Esposito in the ninth for a 5-4 victory that put the Yankees 5 1/2 games ahead of the second place Sox.

While the Yankees were at work in what may prove to be the wrap-up job in their run for a third straight American League pennant, Milwaukee's Braves came off with a seven-game lead in pursuit of their first National League flag after a 12-6 clobbering by the New York Giants.

The defeat melted a half game from the Milwaukee edge as Pittsburgh's Ronnie Kline blanked St. Louis 2-0 with a six-hitter and skidded the Cards to third. Brooklyn took second, beating Chicago's Cubs 4-8 in 14 innings. Cincinnati gained full charge of fourth, beating Philadelphia back to fifth 6-5.

Suns Sign 39 Football Candidates
Thirty-nine candidates have signed for workouts with the Phoenix Suns, an entry in the newly formed Western Professional Football League, reports head coach Chink Coleman.

An eventual workout squad of 50 is expected. This will be trimmed to the league limit of 35 by the time of the first game against the San Francisco Wind Breakers in San Francisco, September 15.

Coleman expressed pleasure with the quality, and the physical condition of the squad. The average age is 23.

Among the candidates is Edward Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Stuart of Hope. Edward graduated from Yerger High School, was a star of the Yerger Tigers, attended A. M. & N. College, Pine Bluff, Arkansas where he also ranked the best of the Arkansas State Lions.

In the other AL games, Boston won handily to only two hits from Jim Bunning and Billy Hoest—but one was Ted Williams' 33rd home run that defeated Detroit 1-0. Baltimore walloped Cleveland 19-6, regaining fifth from the Tribe. Washington defeated Kansas City 5-2.

Turley, relieved in the sixth last night after the Sox had tagged Larsen for a run that cut New York's lead to 4-2. The Yankee had smashed a 1-0 Sox edge in the fourth with the first of a pair of two-run frames against 17-game winner Billy Pierce, who lost his 10th.

Earl Torgeson rapped a two run homer off Turley in the seventh, after Hank Bauer's homer had given him the big edge in the top of the frame. Larry Doby's one-out single, a walk and an infield out set up the payoff whammy on Sammy that saved Larsen's eighth victory.

Banning was touched for both Red Sox hits. The skinny, right-hander, now 15-7, gave up the first hit when Billy Klaus singled in the fourth. Frank Sullivan won it with a 10-hitter.

Williams, tying Yankee Mickey Mantle and Washington's Roy Sievers, for the AL home run lead, kept his average at .380 when Mantle, 0-for-4, lost three points for .373.

The Giants nailed the Braves with eight runs in the third off Gene Conley, now 8-7. Valmy Thomas chipped in a three-run double in the frame that brought rookie Curt Bracley an 8-7 mark.

Kline, who has won four in a row for a 6-15 mark, made it against the Cards as Hank Follee and Bill Virdon singled for a run in the third off Larry Jackson, who also gave six hits.

Wally Post's two-run 17th homer capped a six-run second for the Redlegs. Curt Simmons lost it. Brooks Lawrence won it with relief help for a 12-11 record.

A pinch-single by Elmer Vallee, out the job done for the Brooks, who hadn't been second since July 24. Ed Roebuck, relieving in the sixth, won his sixth, blanking the Cubs on three singles.

The Orioles hit the one-game seppir high in AL this season with Gus Triandos rapping a pair of home runs and a double. Connie Johnson fanned 12, but needed relief help to win his 12th.

Ft. Smith Is Again Picked for Second

By JOHN R. STARR
FORT SMITH, Ark. — This is a rebuilding year at Fort Smith and the Grizzlies will be yard press to repeat last year's second place finish in the Big Eight Conference football race.

Coach William H. Stanell, who came from Blytheville to succeed Steed White as head coach, greeted only five lettermen — just one of those a 1956 starter — when he met the team last week.

Such stars as twin halfbacks Dattrell and Jarrell Williams, full-back Roger Lee and center David Plunkett paced the Grizzlies to a 6-3-1 season last year. To fill their shoes, Stanell must depend on transfers and untested squadmen and sophomores.

Tackle Paul Shaver, the only returning regular, is expected to bolster a capable line which will include chd. David Wasson, guard Gordon Wilson and tackle Victor Durham. All saw considerable action last year.

However, quarterback Monte Boley is the only back with solid game experience and Boley was sidelined in the second practice session with pulled ligaments which will cause him to miss most of the pre-season workouts.

Fort Smith got a fair break on transfer students. Three of them look like good bets to break into the starting lineup. Terry Forringer is a speedy 145-pound halfback from Fayetteville, Jim Presley is a bruising 190-pound tackle from St. Arne's Academy in Fort Smith, and Jim Scrudder is a 187-pound tackle with experience at Paris. All three showed up well in early workouts.

Stanell and his assistants are working with a squad of 43. Fort Smith opens Sept. 6 against arch-rival Van Buren — then takes a week off before swinging into Big Eight action against El Dorado Sept. 20. The Grizzlies play six of the other seven Big Eight schools, missing only Blytheville, last year's doormat.

The schedule:
Sept. 6, Van Buren, home; Sept. 20, El Dorado, home; Sept. 27, Pine Bluff, there; Oct. 4, Subiaco, home; Oct. 11, Little Rock, Cent.

U.S. Keeps Silent on Missile Data

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's announcement that it has successfully tested an intercontinental missile means the Soviet Union is abreast or ahead of the United States in the race to develop that weapon.

This country is not revealing how close it is to achieving an operational ICBM. Beyond saying the program is going ahead under a high priority, American officials have kept details of that program a closely guarded secret.

An ICBM — a ballistic missile — is one fired from a base. Then, under its own fuel power, it speeds toward its target. A guided missile is one which is fired from a base but is guided electronically toward its target while in flight.

The ICBM is intended to travel 5,000 miles. One of these, fired from Leningrad, could hit London in 10 or 15 minutes. It is not known whether the Russians have an ICBM.

This country has been developing two 5,000-mile ICBM missiles: the Atlas and the Titan. Work on the latter was started after work on the Atlas. The United States has never successfully fired an ICBM.

Earlier this summer, the Atlas was tested at Cape Canaveral, Fla., but it was a failure. It rose about 5,000 feet, turned, and fell back to earth.

This country has fired a device — that's the best name for it since it is not a full-fledged missile — almost 3,000 miles.

About two weeks ago the Army fired from the Florida base an IRBM, called the Jupiter, which reportedly reached an altitude of 800 miles, traveled about 1,200 miles, and reached a speed estimated at 15,000 miles an hour on its plunge back to earth. Another missile was fired from Cape Canaveral yesterday, but military officials declined to say what type was tested.

And the Air Force has under production the Snark, a jet-powered, pilotless bomber considered capable of spanning the distance between the American continent and the Russian heartland.

This writer sought — from people familiar with the missile program — to learn how much this country has spent on missile development of all kinds since the end of World War II.

An estimate, which one informed source said was conservative, came to more than 25 billion dollars. This would be 12 times more than the two billion dollars spent in developing the atomic bomb during World War II.

Roughly, there are six types of missile programs:

The ICBM, the biggest and most important as a deterrent to war; the IRBM; air-to-air missiles (fired from planes at planes); air-to-underwater missiles fired from planes at targets on or beneath the surface of the sea; and surface-to-air missiles (fired from the ground at planes).

Beck Claims Union Probing Contracts

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Teamster President Dave Beck said today his powerful union was investigating contracts negotiated by seven New York City "paper" locals alleged by the Senate racket investigators to be dominated by hoodlums.

Beck said he has asked for all contracts negotiated by the New York City Teamster locals to be investigated. He said he was especially interested in comparing the contracts of the seven "paper" locals.

The Senate racket investigators committee charged Midwest Teamster Boss James Hoffa "made a deal" with mobster Johnny Dio to transfer the locals from the old AFL United Auto Workers into the Teamster Union.

"We are bringing into the Washington headquarters the contracts and agreements of all New York locals," Beck said. "This is for the purpose of comparing their provisions on wage and working conditions with those of standard Teamster contracts in other part of the country."

Beck and other Teamster bosses, including Hoffa, are holding an executive board meeting here. Beck said yesterday's closed session was devoted to "routine business" and that the board had not yet discussed charges of corruption brought by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee. He said the board was awaiting a report from its attorneys before preparing an answer to the charges.

Ike Weathers Two Exposures of Asian Flu

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower appears to have weathered safely two possible exposures to Asian flu.

But he still has to keep his fingers crossed awhile against the possibility of contracting the disease.

Seven days now have passed since the President came in contact with two persons — one a member of his staff, the other a photographer who later developed mild cases of what has been diagnosed tentatively as Asian flu.

Dr. Vales Trotter of the U. S. Public Health Service has said the usual incubation period for that type of flu is one to three days, but that development of illness may take as long as seven days after exposure in exceptional cases.

So it appears on the basis of what Trotter said, that Eisenhower is not going to get the flu as a result of the two suspected exposures last week. But it isn't known for sure whether he may have been exposed again later in the week, and — if he was — whether the disease might develop as a result.

Eisenhower was inoculated against Asian flu last Monday. But the vaccine is not effective against exposures which occur in advance of inoculation. And it takes 10 to 14 days, Trotter said, to build up an immunity after an inoculation.

The President has shown no sign of developing the flu. He played golf yesterday afternoon and later went to Walter Reed Army Hospital to visit Mrs. Eisenhower, who is recuperating from surgery Aug. 6.

Solons Probe Air Force on Spare Parts

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate investigating subcommittee today sought to learn from Air Force officials how 44 million dollars worth of excess spare parts accumulated at nine Arctic bases.

Maj. Gen. John D. Ryan, director of materiel of the Strategic Air Command, was called as an early witness. The Strategic Air Command took over major bases in the area from the Northeast Air Command last April 1.

The subcommittee said some of the surplus had been accumulating since the Korean War. Some spare parts were stored on the Arctic beaches and were damaged by the weather, it said.

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said the Air Force, Defense Department and Army learned of the excess supplies from the committee, opened their own investigation and are expected to improve the supply system.

McClellan said that in one case, a warrant officer buried $33,000 worth of extra parts.

The chairman said the subcommittee wants to know the amount of government waste involved in the case, whether similar excesses exist around the world, and whether the Air Force supply system operates efficiently.

McClellan said the military investigation, still continuing, has turned up millions of dollars worth of excess parts.
